RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

CORNERSTONE RESEARCH, Chicago, IL — September 2025 – Present
Analyst

- Conduct econometric analyses like linear regression in R and STATA using large administrative datasets like Census, CPS IPUMS, and OEWS; use methods like DiD and event study to investigate market definition and power.
- Use LLM-assisted methods (Claude Code) to review and construct datasets from large, unstructured document productions; write production-ready code that withstands legal scrutiny from opposing parties; carefully handle confidential datasets.
- Proposed a framework for identifying primary jobs when multiple jobs are listed simultaneously in Lightcast data for a research project on labor mobility.

CDS NATIONAL SURVEY RESEARCH GROUP, Arizona State University — January 2023 – August 2025
Co-Author

- Co-authored three research papers analyzing demand for car-free living and sustainable transportation behavior, and formative travel experiences using data from a National Survey (with Dr. Hue-Tam Jamme and Dr. Deborah Salon).
- Contributed to methodological design, conceptual framing, data analysis, literature reviews, background research, and writing.
- Built binary logistic regression models, conducted mediation analyses, and estimated marginal effects.

BOOTH CENTER FOR DECISION RESEARCH, University of Chicago — January 2023 – April 2023
Research Assistant

- Collected and qualitatively coded experimental response data for a study on how perceived race and sexual orientation affect negotiation outcomes, later published as Chang, Kirgios, & Zlatev (2023), "Race, Sexual Orientation, and Intersectionality in Distributive Negotiation Outcomes for Men," Organization Science.
- Built an Excel tracking sheet and executed Craigslist outreach for a city council audit study examining how perceived gender identity affects willingness to help.

SCHOOL OF GEOGRAPHICAL SCIENCES & URBAN PLANNING, Arizona State University — May 2022 – May 2025
Research Assistant

- Assisted with a Canadian Government report analyzing the extent to which the platform economy provides opportunities for women's economic and social empowerment in Cambodia and Thailand, later published as Jamme et al. (2026). "The 'Intermittent Shift' and 'Digital Ceiling': Limits to Women's Empowerment in the Platform Economy," Information Technology for Development.
- Led quantitative survey data analysis in STATA; identified an unexpected relationship between platform-work and increased domestic labor burdens despite increased financial power.

- Synthesized scholarship on the Parasite and Villain tropes present in racial code words to investigate how coded language undermines Fair Housing Act enforcement, later published as Pfeiffer & Hu (2024), "Deconstructing Racial Code Words," Law and Society Review (collaboration with the James E. Rogers College of Law).

GENDER SENSITIVE PARK PLANNING IN A HOT DESERT CITY, Arizona State University August 2022 – May 2025
Principal Investigator

- Designed and administered original surveys to investigate the relationship between teenage girls and gender minorities and their neighborhood parks to deliver gender-sensitive public park design recommendations conducive to the hot desert climates.
- Partnered with the Girl Scouts to plan and execute a modified UN Her City Development participatory development plan through community engagement workshops; geo-coded and mapped survey respondent locations in STATA.
